The mission of the Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) Center for Biologics Evaluation and Research (CBER) is "to protect and enhance the public health through the regulation of biological and related products including blood, vaccines, allergenics, tissues, and cellular and gene therapies." Their mission is an important one, and consumers and scientists will want to bookmark this page and return to it on a regular basis. On the right-hand side of the page, visitors can sign up for their RSS feed, check out the "About" section, and read through their FAQ. In the center of the page, visitors can peruse the "Hot Topics", which at any given moment might include information on influenza vaccinations or product recalls or withdrawals. The site is rounded out by topical guide to the site along the left-hand side of the home page.
